REPUBLICAN SLOGAN

Condemned—Thinking Voter Does
Not Accept "My Party" Motto.

Editor Gazette:

Please accept from one of your many readers my warmest congratulations on your splendid editorial, "An Awful Example"—in the last issue of The Gazette. Living out here among the magnetic hills and mountains, I thank God for what The Gazette is doing to throttle the passing scoundrelisms of the day.

My life-long friends, Judge Longenecker, Moses A. Points and John Lutz, stalwart Republicans all their lives, never advocated such a damnable doctrine as "my party, right or wrong, but my party."

JOSEPH P. IMLER

A Glance at the Record of the Republican Candidate for County Treasurer When He Was Sheriff of Bedford County.

When Joseph P. Imler was a candidate on the Republican ticket for Sheriff of Bedford County several years ago, The Gazette, though advocating the election of his opponent, said not one word derogatory to Mr. Imler. He was elected to the office and his official career while serving as Sheriff is now a matter of record and may be examined by any citizen who cares to do so.

After his term of office had expired he appealed from the report of the County Auditors and endeavored to collect from the County of Bedford—to take from your pockets, Taxpayers of Bedford County—ONE THOUSAND ONE HUNDRED NINETEEN DOLLARS AND FOURTEEN CENTS for taking twenty-four unfortunate inmates of the insane department at the Alms House to the Asylum at Harrisburg. Is this the stripe of man that you, Mr. Voter, wish to see placed in the office of County Treasurer?

Below we give the court record of his suit against the county and his itemized bill as it appears of record for transferring the unfortunate insane to Harrisburg:

It will be noted from the above, all of which is copied from court records, that Mr. Imler attempted to collect mileage at the rate of 10c per mile just as though he had taken the unfortunates to the asylum one at a time, whereas he made but one trip.

Ponder, Mr. Voter, the figures, before you cast your vote!

Having 24 persons to look after it was right that he should have a number of assistants to care for those in his charge, but when he attempted to collect 24 times $31.20 as mileage for making one trip, he stepped beyond all limits! Then, too, he collected 6c per mile for each of the patients, who only made the trip one way, and transportation on any railroad on earth may be gotten for 3c per mile.

Mr. Imler made the appeal from the Auditors' report in April 1909, but the matter was not speedily settled and forgotten as he desired; in May of that year an issue was awarded; his statement was filed in January of the following year; the defendant's pleas were filed in March, and amended pleas in April, when the case was continued, and it was again continued in September. This continuing was throwing the matter too close to the present campaign; he had started to elector for the Republican nomination for County Treasurer, and in November 1910 he settled the case for $469.20, which was a deduction of $649.94 from his bill. What admission on his part was his willingness to settle for $649.94 less than his bill?

What think you, Mr. Voter, of the matter?

John Fletcher, the Democratic nominee for the place, is a man whose integrity cannot be questioned, and he is qualified to fill the position with credit to himself and his county.

For whom will you vote for County Treasurer.

OCTOBER WEDDINGS

Brides Two of Bedford's Popular
Young Women.

At 6 o'clock Wednesday evening in the Presbyterian Church Miss Helen Kirk Russell and Mr. Frederick Stock Sammel were united in marriage by the bride's pastor, Rev. E. F. Reimer. ## RALLY DAY SERVICES

Interesting Program Rendered in Bedford M. E. Church.

The Rally Day service as observed in the Methodist Church last Sunday was an event of unusual interest. Aside from the large attendance of the school proper, about fifty members of the Everett organized adult bible class were in attendance and contributed to the program in several numbers most inspiring. Following is the program as rendered most creditably by both juniors and seniors:

She was a consistent member of the Church of the Brethren. Her great age associated her with many of the eventful changes in the southern part of Morrison's Cove, and her extraordinary memory enabled her to relate much of the past and unwritten history of her native place. She was much beloved and remembered by those on whom her kind and willing hands had bestowed motherly care.

She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Anna R. Beach, one son, Samuel Weaver, in the west, and one granddaughter, Miss Myrtle Replogle of Loyalburg. ### THE HOUDAN.

Hen historians have had a continuous rooster fight over the Houdans. Frenchmen claim to hold the patent on this poultry perfect and are said to have made it by crossing Black Polish and the French Crevecoeur and touching this cross with Light Brahma to give size. They declare they sent this breed to England in 1850, its first mention in English hen history being made in the 1853 edition of the English Poultry Book.

Johnny Bull resents this and swears he made his own Houdan of a cross of Dorking, the English "breed of breeds," and the French Crevecoeur. But this isn't our cockfight, and we'll roost on the top perch and watch the scrap, though our private opinion is that the French, English and American Houdans aren't forty-second chicken kizens. The most of history is a pack of lies anyway, they say.

The Houdan came to this country in 1859 and was first exhibited by the famous John B. Gough in 1867.

"It-ees ze fine, ze vera fine, bootiful fowl," says the Frenchman, and that's true.

It is a compactly built, full breasted, long bodied, short shanked, five toed, white meat bird; is hardy, easily confined, a nonsitter, small eater, quick grower, lays early and long, and its big white egg is a dandy.

Unlike humans, Mr. and Mrs. Houdan wear a beard that should be full and a crest that should be globular, large, well balanced on the head and falling backward on the neck.

In color the bird is mostly glossy black, one white tipped feather to every

The beak is dark horn; face, eyes, comb, wattles red; lobes white and shanks and toes pinkish white mottled with black.

In its checkered career the Houdan has worn the strawberry, butterfly, antler and V shaped combs, all made in France except the last, which was made and patented in America by Dr. James Rigg in 1872. The V comb is standard in the United States.

OH, YOU PUNKIN PIE!

There be cocoanut an' mince pie,
There be custard pie an' cherry,
Shooey, raisin, lemon, rhubarb,
Apple, peach an' huckleberry.

But, oh, yum, yum, there be punkin—
Yaller pump pie, be gosh!
My Marlar jist kin make 'em
Out of them there alrly squash!

When she says: "Bill, git a punkin;
Wash 'er at the water spout;
We must have some punkin custard;"
I jist "Halleluiah!" shout.

How I love to watch her make 'em,
Her pump arms to the elbow,
Smilin', laughin' an' a-jokin',
Rollin' out the rich pie dough!

Then she pours in that sweet punkin,
Spiced an' mixed with rich sweet milk,
Crimps the border like the ruffe
On her purty bright green silk.

Don't them punkins jist smell lovely
Bakin' in that oven hot?

KURIOS FROM KORRESPONDENTS

Q. I find the eggs in the front of my incubator heat about right, while those in the rear are not hot enough. How may I remedy this? A. Elevate the tray in the rear with a wedge.

Q. What time is required to hatch eggs from a duck that is a cross of Pekin and Muscovy? As Pekin eggs hatch in four weeks and Muscovy in five, I am puzzled to know when to expect eggs from the cross to hatch in my incubator. A. Thirty-two, days generally.

Q. I have been reading so much of "rots" and "spots," please define. A. When an egg is candied, if decay has begun, the bacterial development shows a small dark spot. That's a "spot." If this growth continues the egg becomes opaque, and that's your "rot."

Q. Do you consider that caponizing causes suffering? A. It must cause but little, for a fowl will eat during or immediately after the operation.

Q. Should White and Brown Leghorns have about the same length of leg, and how many points does the standard require for their combs? A. White Leghorns are higher on the leg. A five point comb for both varieties is demanded.

Q. Are eggs cheaper in Canada than in the United States, and what duties are paid? A. Last winter eggs averaged 4 cents higher per dozen in Canada. Eggs entering Canada are taxed 3 cents per dozen duty, and eggs shipped into the United States are taxed 5 cents per dozen.

Q. What breed of chickens is most popular in the New England states? A. The Rhode Island Red, it is said.

Q. How can I stop the bleeding of a cock's comb when injured and spur when cut down? A. We cover comb with colwels or soft feathers. Some sear with hot iron or cover with flour. Touch spur with burning match, and the flame will cause blood and horn to form a cement that closes the outlet.

FEATHERS AND EGGSHELLS.
The penguin, perhaps the greatest layer of the wild fowls, is declared to be the progenitor of the Indian Runner duck, the egg machine of the duck tribe.

When dry picking if the birds are not stuck right the feathers will not loosen, the bird will not bleed properly, and as a result the blotchy carcass brings a low price.

When eggs under hens aren't tested you run the risk of a rot being broken over the rest and spoiling them. If the hen breaks a rot and it is smeared on a newly hatched chick, that chick's name is Dennis.

HER HAIR GREW

That's Why a Thankful Woman Recommends Parisian Sage.

F. W. Jordan will sell you a fifty cent bottle of PARISIAN SAGE and guarantee it to banish dandruff, stop falling hair and itching scalp, or money back. It's a delightful hair dressing that makes hair lustrous and fascinating.

"In the spring I was recovering from a severe case of erysipelas, which left me virtually bald on the front of my head and next to my ears. The hair kept coming out rapidly and nothing I used stopped my getting entirely bald, until I used two bottles of PARISIAN SAGE. This tonic made my hair start to grow in and, in fact, grew me a good, fair amount of hair, and it has entirely stopped my hair falling out.

It is with pleasure that I give a public recommendation to PARISIAN SAGE, which I know is a wonder." Mrs. Ella Gilchrist, W. Pitt St., Bedford, Pa.

Sugar barrels are good receptacles for packing poultry. They are clean, cheap and have no smell. They hold about 300 pounds, and the dressed fowls should be packed breast down and shipped the day after killing if not packed in ice.

Egg farmers at Cape Colony, South Africa, do not have to compete with an egg trust, but with the penguins, which lay vast quantities of eggs on the South African coast and its islands. These eggs are shipped to London, where they sell for 60 cents per dozen.

Egg producers are running their brain machinery overtime to make the American hen lay more eggs and are doing it, but at the same time the hen is turning out infertile eggs to beat the band. The past season was one of poor hatches, and phenomenal laying is the chief cause.

Mrs. Frank Metcalf of California has the distinction of being the only American woman who has originated a new breed of poultry. Her breed, the Buckeyes, is a composite of Plymouth Rock, Buff Cochins, Black Breasted Red Game and Indian Game and is a bird built in particular for pounds of fine, fancy meat and eggs.

General Funston's account of his "Capture of Emilio Aguinaldo," in the November Scribner, reads almost like a chapter in some highly sensational novel of adventure. Its impression is made by the surprising nature of the plot involved, and the desperate character of the expedition that succeeded in putting an end to the war. Its success brought General Funston his promotion to a Brigadier in the regular army.

THE TEST OF MERIT

Bedford People Are Given Convincing Proof.

No better test of any article can be made than the test of time and this is particularly true of a kidney medicine. Doan's Kidney Pills have stood this test and stood it well. What better proof of the merits of this remedy could you demand, than the statement of a Bedford resident who has been cured and has stayed cured?

Read the following:
Mrs. S. S. Wheatstone, 233 West John Street, Bedford, Pa., says: "I suffered severely from pains in my back and I always felt nervous and depressed. At times I was so dizzy that I could hardly see. After taking Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at John R. Dull's Drug Store, I felt better and as I continued their use all symptoms of my trouble gradually disappeared. I am grateful to Doan's Kidney Pills for the cure they effected." (Statement given October 14, 1907.)

Two Years Later
When Mrs. Wheatstone was interviewed on November 15, 1909, she said: "I have had no need of a kidney remedy since I took Doan's Kidney Pills. I willingly confirm all I have previously said in favor of this preparation."

CONFIDENCE

We Back up Our Statements with Our Personal Reputation and Money!

We are so positive that we can relieve constipation, no matter how chronic it may be, that we offer to furnish the medicine free of all cost if we fail.

We think that it is worse than useless to attempt to cure constipation with cathartic drugs. Cathartics may do much harm. They may cause a reaction, irritate and weaken the bowels, and make constipation more chronic.

Constipation is often accompanied and may be caused by weakness of the nerves and muscles of the large intestines or colon. To expect a cure you must therefore tone up and strengthen those parts and restore them to healthier activity.

The discovery of the active principle of our remedy involved the labor of our skillful research chemists. This remedy produces results such as are expected from the best of the best-known intestinal tonics, and it is particularly prompt in its results.

We want you to try Rexall Orderlies on our guarantee. They are exceedingly pleasant to take and are ideal for children. They apparently act directly on the nerves and muscles of the bowels, having, it would seem, a neutral action on other organs or glands. They do not purge or cause inconvenience. If they do not positively cure chronic or habitual constipation and thus relieve the myriads of associate or dependent ailments, your money will be refunded. Try Rexall Orderlies at our risk. Three sizes of packages, 10c, 25c and 50c. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies in this community only at our store—The Rexall Store. F. W. Jordan.

OUT OF THE SAVAGE STATE

By DAVID WALTER CHURCH

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

From the time America was discovered to, say, half a century ago there were repeated cases of white children being carried away by Indians and brought up in the tribe. Those that were raised by red men were boys. At any rate, I never read of a girl having received such treatment. Doubtless any girl falling into their hands was killed. Savages are not overburdened with respect for the value of women.

Some forty years ago I was a young lieutenant in the U. S. cavalry, and my principal business about that time was fighting Indians. In one of our skirmishes with the Sioux we captured one of the white boys who had been brought up as an Indian. He was a handsome little fellow, tall and straight, about fourteen years old, and his originally white skin from having been exposed had turned brown. He could speak only the Sioux language; could not remember any life but that of an Indian, any father or mother or other relative. When captured he was fighting like a little devil.

The colonel turned him over to me to see if I could discover his identity. I questioned the Indians who had been captured with the boy, but they knew nothing of his antecedents, since they had captured him from another tribe when he was about four years old. I then questioned the boy himself, through an interpreter, and found that he had once been shown the clothes in which he had been captured and some trinkets that were taken from those to whom he had belonged. These were a pocketbook, a gold watch and chain and various other things the boy could not remember. They had been kept by an old squaw, who received them at the boy's second capture from another squaw, to whom they had been given by the chief of the tribe who had taken the baby from his parents.

Having reported this to the colonel, he directed me to ride under a flag of truce to the main body of the Sioux, secure the articles and bring them back if possible. He authorized me to pay $50 for them, if necessary. I went to the Sioux camp, purchased the articles for a song and brought them back with me.

Besides the watch and the pocketbook was a tintype of a baby, and a resemblance could be traced between it and the boy. There were also some lace and a bunch of keys on a silver ring. I examined the contents of the pocketbook. It was a long leather one such as is used to carry unfolded bills. If there had been any bills in it they were not there when I looked into it. There were papers the use of which were very plain to me, but would mean nothing to an Indian. For instance, there was a deed to a lot in the county of Cook, state of Illinois. There were a draft on a bank in San Francisco and two little books that I recognized as savings bank books.

I reported the find to the colonel, and he forwarded my report to Washington. After a long period, during which we kept the boy—much against his will—at Fort G., to which we returned after the campaign, the colonel received an order to detail some one to take the boy to the places indicated by the deed and the savings bank books, with a view to learning who he was. The colonel gave me the job.

Looking on the map of Illinois, I discovered that Cook county was the site of Chicago. One of the bank books indicated an account in a bank at Peoria and another in Quincy, both in the same state.

I set off in company with the boy, who by this time had learned a little English, and on reaching Chicago found the lot in question to be in the heart of the city. The deed was in the name of Edgar Kyle. This also was the name on the savings bank books and the draft on San Francisco. The draft was for $3,000, the accounts in the savings banks amounted to an aggregate of $8,743, and the lot in Chicago had within a few years become worth about $100,000.

Pursuing my investigations, I discovered that Edgar Kyle some twelve or thirteen years before had emigrated or started in a plains schooner for California with his wife and baby, but had never been heard from after leaving the Missouri river.

I felt very sure that they had been murdered by Indians, their baby carried off, that I now had him under my care, and he was doubtless heir to a very good property. But I saw very little hope of his possessing it.

On his baby clothing were the initials "E. K." and on this evidence I collected the draft and the amounts in the savings banks for him. With this as a starter I succeeded in having the court of chancery appoint a guardian for him, and proceedings were begun to secure the lot, which had been bought in under a foreclosure of a mortgage for $2,500. A flaw in the foreclosure was discovered which enabled young Kyle's guardian to recover the property for him by paying the mortgage with interest.

Meanwhile Kyle was being educated and is now a prominent resident of a western city. He still holds the Chicago lot, which is worth three-quarters of a million. He says his boyhood, passed with the Indians, now seems to him like a weird dream, though for several years after becoming civilized he often had longings to return to a savage life. But realizing that a better life was before him he resisted and now rejoices that he did.

Ann Elizabeth Turns Things About.

By CLARISSA MACKIE.

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

The journey down in the train had been one of mingled pleasure and pain to Ann Elizabeth Clark. There was pleasure in contemplating how nice she would look in the new suit which Artemus had promised her; there was positive suffering in the mental suggestion that she might have to ask him for the money with which to pay the bill.

They had left Springbrook on the 6:02 train after an early breakfast, and all the way to the station in the rocking, careening old stage Ann Elizabeth had hoped that her husband would reach down into his hip pocket and bring forth the fat brown wallet in which he kept his money. It would be such a little thing for him to do—to count out the necessary money from the roll of bills and give it to her that she might feel the satisfaction of possessing the money for a short time. For Artemus Clark was a man who paid all his wife's bills, and Ann Elizabeth was one of those unfortunate wives who never have a cent of spending money without asking for it. As she was too proud to beg for what she considered rightfully her own share of the family income Ann Elizabeth went without many things until Artemus, ashamed of her shabbiness and in his heart knowing her reluctance to ask for money, at last made the suggestion that they journey to the city and purchase a suit for Ann Elizabeth.

Not a word about money had Artemus uttered during the stage ride; in the train he became absorbed in his newspaper, and so Ann Elizabeth sat, growing more miserable every moment until at last they rolled into the Central station. Half the pleasure of the journey was lost in the fact that Artemus had forgotten to give her the money for her purchases and she must ask him after all. And Artemus meant to be the kindest of husbands. Ann Elizabeth firmly believed that.

There was a particular store that the Clarks always traded at when in New York, and as they approached it now on the surface car Artemus talked of this and that and the other thing in the most careless manner, but not once did he mention the money for her suit. Ann Elizabeth remembered a horrible experience she had once had, when her husband had gone away and forgotten to give her any money and left her standing penniless in one of the shops surrounded by a heap of unpaid for purchases. Several hours afterward he had found her there waiting doggedly for his return. "Here we are!" announced Artemus, shouldering his way out of the car and helping his little wife to alight. "Now, Ann Elizabeth, I don't see why you can't pick out a suit—get just what you want, and it will please me. I'm going to take the next car down to Triangle's to see about a new harness. Suppose you meet me there at noon and we'll go somewhere for dinner." He was moving away carelessly when Ann Elizabeth clutched desperately at his coat sleeve.

"Oh, Artemus, haven't you forgotten something?" she faltered. Surely he would recollect now!

Her husband looked down from his six feet of handsome good naturedness and smiled. "I don't recollect, Ann; what is it?"

Ann Elizabeth's sensitive face flushed painfully and her gray eyes darkened until they seemed almost black. She swallowed her pride and said humbly, "You forgot to give me the money for my suit, Artemus."

Artemus flung back his head and laughed heartily. "Bless my soul, so I did! Why didn't you ask me before, eh?"

Then it was that Ann Elizabeth Clark realized that her husband had kept her waiting purposely; it had amused him to tease her—she, who had not had a new suit in three years! The tears came into her eyes and she turned away proudly. How she would love to throw his money back into his hands! "I was only having a little fun, Ann," he laughed softly, as he pulled out his wallet and gave to her generously from it. "There, get what you want. Remember you can always have what you want if you ask for it."

A curious look came into Ann's eyes. She held the roll of bills above the ground and looked down. "Speak, Fido! That's what you mean, don't you, Artemus?"

Artemus reddened uncomfortably. "Oh, now, Ann, you take it too seriously; I didn't mean to be unkind. We've been married ten years, and yet you act just as bashful about asking me for money as you did in the beginning. Don't mind my teasing. Will you meet me at Triangle's at noon?"

"Yes," said Ann coldly, turning away and entering the shop. She was too much overcome by the little scene to take much pleasure in the selection of her new suit, but dominating any possible satisfaction in the purchase there was a growing feeling of resentment toward her husband. To such proportions did her displeasure arise that she deliberately purchased a most becoming coat and skirt of rich dark blue, with a velvet hat to match, although dark blue was Artemus Clark's especial abhorrence.

For several days after this trip to the city Ann Elizabeth Clark was very thoughtful. She moved about her pretty little home with grave gray eyes, and occasionally she smiled demurely, or again the tears came unbidden to her lashes. Artemus, busy about the farm and attending to the manifold duties connected with his dairy, did not observe the change in his wife.

One night he came in to supper tired and hungry. The kitchen was immaculately clean, a bright coal fire glowed in the stove, and the kettle sang softly. There was no sign of supper, although it was fifteen minutes past the usual hour. The dining room table was not even laid for the evening meal, while Ann Elizabeth sat in the sitting room embroidering a centerpiece with daintily placed stitches.

"What's the matter?" demanded Artemus, in surprise. "Had company?"

"No. Why?" Ann looked up pleasantly. "Nothing, only I thought it was funny supper wasn't ready," said Artemus rather grumblingly.

"Why, you can have it now if you want it," Ann spoke in a surprised tone, just as if Artemus' request was what she had been waiting for. She bustled about the rooms, while her husband lounged near the lamp reading the paper.

"What you got?" he asked hungrily, as he came in response to her call. "Ham and eggs, pears and cake. I was hoping you'd fry some parsnips. You know I can never get enough of them," he said in a disappointed tone.

"Would you like some parsnips? Why didn't you ask me?" returned Ann briskly. "I'll fry some at once." She fitted into the kitchen, and soon the sputtering brown slices were placed before her husband.

Artemus ate his supper in silence. There was something peculiar about his wife's demeanor that he could not understand. He watched Ann furtively as she flew about doing up the evening's work. At last she came and sat down near him and took out her embroidery once more. Artemus looked at it resentfully, almost jealously. She had told him it was to be a wedding present for Jennie Beake, and Miss Beake was to marry one of Ann Elizabeth's old admirers.

From these facts Artemus deduced that while his wife stitched at a centerpiece to adorn the parlor table, one of her old lovers, he (Artemus, her husband) sat before her with a large hole in the toe of his sock.

But Ann Elizabeth was absorbed in her needlework and did not notice that Artemus had worked off his slipper and that the hole in his sock was painfully in evidence. At last he spoke rather crossly:

"Seems as if you might find time to mend my clothes."

"Why, I do mend them, Art. What is it now?" Ann looked at him with lifted brows.

"That!" complained Artemus, wringing the peeping toe. "It's confounded uncomfortable, I tell you."

"It must be," said Ann sympathetically. "Want me to mend it?"

"If you please," said Artemus meekly.

When he reached his bedroom door that night Mr. Clark stared uncomprehendingly at the disorder that met his gaze. The bed was just as he had left it that morning, undisturbed, unmade. His clothes were strewn about, and there was a general air of neglect over the place that was very disheartening to a man who had slaved all day and who had waited for the last hour in pleasant anticipation of the comfortable bed that awaited his weary body.

He stepped to the door of his wife's room and looked in. All was in apple pie order, immaculately clean, with the white dimity spread turned down from the inviting bed. Ann stood before the window letting down her shower of yellow hair. Artemus hesitated for a moment. He wondered if Ann had been too busy or tired to make his bed, and yet she had never found it a trying task before.

Suddenly Ann turned and saw him there, hesitating. "Did you want anything, Artemus?" she asked pleasantly.

"My bed," replied her husband. "I guess you forgot it, Ann. It isn't made."

"I'll make it now," said Ann without surprise or apology, passing into his room. With a few deft movements she went to and fro, picking up things, replacing them in wardrobe or dresser, making the bed into a comfortable couch.

"Much obliged," said Artemus awkwardly.

"You're welcome," said Ann cheerfully. "Whenever you want anything, Art, just ask for it, and I'll do anything you want. Be sure and ask me. Good night."

Artemus lay in puzzled wakefulness for several hours. At last he broke into sudden soft laughter. "Cute," he chuckled to himself. "Cunning as the dickens. I declare if it isn't one on me!"

At breakfast next morning Artemus suddenly threw a bombshell into the conversation. "How would you like to have a weekly allowance, Ann?" he asked. "I mean some money every week of your own to spend as you please without asking anybody—eh?"

Ann Elizabeth came around the table and encircled her husband's head with tender arms. "You are the best husband in the world, Artemus," she said solemnly.

"You mean the husband of the best wife in the world," corrected Artemus. They looked into each other's eyes and smiled with perfect understanding. Thus ended another one of the world's bloodless battles.

The Medicine of Generosity.

Generosity has wonderful power in curing trouble which by any other means would seem incurable. The story is told of a poor blind woman in Paris who put 27 francs on the plate at a missionary meeting. A friend remonstrated, "You cannot afford so much out of your small earnings." "Oh, yes, I can," she answered. "I've figured it out and know just what I can afford to give." When asked to explain, she said: "I am blind, and I said to my fellow straw workers, 'How much money do you spend in a year for oil in your lamps when it is too dark to work at night?' They replied, 'Twenty-seven francs.' So," said the poor woman, "I found that I saved so much in the year because I am blind and do not need a lamp, and I give it to send light to the dark heathen lands."—Christian Herald.

Often The Kidneys Are Weakened by Over-Work.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

Weak and unhealthy kidneys are responsible for much sickness and suffering, therefore, if kidney trouble is permitted to continue, serious results are most likely to follow. Your other organs may need attention, but your kidneys most, because they do most and should have attention first. Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. A trial will convince you of its great merit.

The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root, the great kidney and bladder remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest because its remarkable health restoring properties have been proven in thousands of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best.

Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, and don't let a dealer sell you something in place of Swamp-Root—if you do you will be disappointed.

SETTING THE LAKE AFIRE

By LAURA IDA ROSS

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

On one of the Vermont lakes there is a house one end of which projects over the water. Farmer Enoch Dale occupied the place with his family, consisting of his wife and children. His oldest daughter, Daisy, was a daisy indeed—straight, comely, and a pleasant smile usually played about her lips whenever she spoke.

"The only trouble about Daisy," said her father to his friend Hickson, "is that she's got a lover. I don't like him. He's a good boy, but there's no sand in him. Nobody will ever accuse Dan Potter of setting the lake afire."

"Pears to me," replied Hickson, "that most gals at your darter's age have a lover if they can git one, and as for Dan Potter, I don't remember you or I ever settin' the lake afire."

"That may be," responded Dale, "but I'm not goin' to give Daisy to anybody that isn't well fixed nohow."

One night Dan was awakened by a glare of light shining in at his window, and, raising himself on his elbow, he looked out to see about it. It was across the lake and was either Farmer Dale's or one of two other houses that were built close together. A flame was just breaking out of one of the upper windows.

The first thought that entered Dan's head was that Farmer Dale would be burned to a char, and he hoped he would. The second thought was that Daisy might be burned, too, and this jumped him out of bed. Hurrying on his clothes, he ran down to the water edge, catching up a pair of oars as he went, got into a boat and started across the lake.

The distance was a mile, the burning house not being directly opposite Dan's starting point. As he drew near enough to get his bearings he saw that the house was Farmer Dale's. The light of the flames lit up the faces of persons standing about. A line had been formed to pass buckets of water, but the work had evidently been stopped by something appalling. The lookers on were running about wildly to no purpose, and Dan could see Farmer and Mrs. Dale with several of their children about them, wringing their hands. Daisy was not there.

The explanation was this: When the fire was discovered Farmer Dale took the smaller children, his wife, carrying the youngest, and got them safely downstairs and out of the house. It was only then that he thought of Daisy, who occupied a room in that part of the house that overhung the lake.

Dale went upstairs again, but the fire, that had been caused by a defective chimney running up through the center of the building, had acquired such a headway at that point that it cut him off from Daisy's room. He ran downstairs and went about frantically, vainly looking for some way of reaching that portion of the house where Daisy slept. It being an extension over water prevented a ladder being raised, and the wind being off the shore the flames and smoke were blown so as to envelop the part he wished to reach.

While the shore was lighted by the flames Dan was in darkness and partly obscured by smoke. He was ignorant that Daisy was supposed to be still in the burning building, but he knew very well where her room was located, for he had often while out on the lake seen a white handkerchief waving to him from her window.

Perhaps it was this that led him instinctively to pull in as near as possible to the burning house. When he came so near as to feel the heat he turned the boat around and kept on slowly backing in. Then above the crackling, the roar and the shouts of those on the shore he heard a cry. He could see nothing for the smoke, but he backed his boat in to within some twenty yards of the house. Then he heard a splash in front of him, and he backed right in under flame and smoke till within a few feet of the house.

Suddenly something rose right up out of the water beside him. He seized it and held garments. Pulling the thing partly up out of the water, he realized that he held a human being. With difficulty he pulled the figure into the boat, and it lay limp in the bottom. Then, taking up the oars, he backed away from the heat and smoke that had become intolerable.

Reaching a point where the light, unobscured by smoke, enabled him to use his eyes, he saw that the figure in his boat was a woman in a nightgown. Turning up the face, he exclaimed:

"Great heavens! It's Daisy!"

Seizing the oars again, he pulled the boat with a few vigorous strokes to the shore some distance away from the burning building and gave a shout. Several persons heard him, Farmer Dale among them, and ran toward him.

"I've got Daisy here," he said, "She jumped into the lake and I picked her up."

Daisy was soon brought back to consciousness and was looked upon by her parents as one raised from the dead.

"Waal, Dale," said Hickson later, "since yer tried to set the lake afire and failed, I reckon yer don't expect as much of Dan Pattie?"

"No, I don't," Dale replied.

"Goin' to give her to him?"

"Reckon she's his'n anyway, seein' it if it hadn't been for him she wouldn't 'a' been alive."

The Fountain Head of Life Is The Stomach

A man who has a weak and impaired stomach and who does not properly digest his food will soon find that his blood has become weak and impoverished, and that his whole body is improperly and insufficiently nourished.

Dr. PIERCE'S GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY makes the stomach strong, promotes the flow of digestive juices, restores the lost appetite, makes assimilation perfect, invigorates the liver and purifies and enriches the blood. It is the great blood-maker, flesh-builder and restorative nerve tonic. It makes men strong in body, active in mind and cool in judgement.

This "Discovery" is a pure, glyceric extract of American medical roots, absolutely free from alcohol and all injurious, habit-forming drugs. All its ingredients are printed on its wrappers. It has no relationship with secret nostrums. Its every ingredient is endorsed by the leaders in all the schools of medicine. Don't accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this time-proven remedy of known composition. Ask your neighbors. They must know of many cures made by it during past 40 years, right in your own neighborhood. World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, Pres., Buffalo, N. Y.

"FACTS," NOT "MUD"

It is not strange that our Republican contemporary should accuse The Gazette of "mud slinging." No doubt "facts" do appear as "mud" to journals of the Penrose machine in this state and to the organs of the "annexes," but we are content to allow the voters to judge as between "facts" and "mud." An impartial decision could hardly be expected from organs for which the machinery of the State Legislature has been used in an ineffectual effort to silence all opposition—to kill the papers of the opposing party. Such a decision could not be expected from papers that in consideration of favors done for them by the party in state and county were satisfied to urge the adoption of that amendment which would have made election officers in every voting district of the state appointive, and that by a source not named; papers that have become so bold as to adopt the slogan "My party, right or wrong, but still my party."

THE FUSION AGREEMENT

The terms and conditions of the fusion agreement have been carried out and all is harmony but for one point. Jasper Luman, who had a few more votes than John Fletcher on the Democratic ticket but fell short of him on the three tickets, has withdrawn as he said he would do. John I. Marks, John C. Nicholson, W. W.

McDaniel, and others, who had nominations on one ticket but failed to secure a plurality on the three have likewise gotten off in favor of those who have secured pluralities on all the tickets, hence the tickets of the three parties will be identical except in the candidates for Commissioners.

For County Commissioner William Easter received five more votes on the Democratic ticket than C. W. Blackburn, but Mr. Blackburn had a plurality of 80 votes over Mr. Easter on the three tickets, and by the terms of the agreement, Mr. Easter should withdraw. This he has not done and his excuse, as set forth in his letter published in this issue, is that Mr. Blackburn did not sign the agreement within the time agreed upon.

This Mr. Blackburn should have done, but he says the paper was not presented to him and that his word was as good as his signature.

This agreement was published and was understood by everybody and was assented to by all candidates and was binding, we think, whether signed or not, hence we feel that Mr. Easter should withdraw. If Mr. Blackburn had secured a Democratic plurality and Mr. Easter had secured a plurality on the three tickets, we should have insisted that it was Mr. Blackburn's duty to withdraw in Mr. Easter's favor, whether or not he had signed an agreement, for that agreement had been assented to by all candidates; and for the same reason we feel that Mr. Easter should carry out the understanding.

This is a state of affairs to be regretted, and since it has assumed the form it has, it might be for the welfare of both Mr. Easter and Mr. Blackburn, as well as for the party and the county, for both to retire in favor of the next highest man on the three tickets.

THE COUNTY CAMPAIGN

Within a month the voters of Bedford County will be called upon to go to the polls and fill the county offices. Then will be decided whether the electors of this county are satisfied with conditions as they exist; whether those who are marching under the motto "My party, right or wrong, my party" shall continue present conditions.

Those who cast the ballots pay the taxes, for the most part, and if those who bear the burdens are satisfied with the present administration,—are satisfied to pay an increase of one mill in county taxes to keep up the present extravagance,—so be it. But why should there be such an increase when the taxpayers do not get "value received" but see the surplus used in increasing the salary of the County Treasurer 14 2-7 per cent.; when before the increase he was receiving more than double the salary of either the Prothonotary or the Register and Recorder, and four times as much as the County Commissioners. His salary is fixed by the Commissioners and Auditors in joint session, hence the necessity of looking after the manner of men who shall fill these places.

Why should the taxpayers of the county pay a higher millage that the surplus may be used to pay Republican papers their price for doing work so as to "keep them in line"—yes, "in existence"? Why should the taxpayers pay just double for the court calendar, which announces the business of a "court of justice" when it can be printed for half what they have to pay?

Do the taxpayers sanction placing the order for printing ballots, without allowing bidding, with Republican organs and paying those organs their price to "keep them in line"? Is this the way individuals do business? No, and it is not the way other counties do it.

The Commissioners did let the first lot of their term out to bids, as the Democratic board that preceded them did in every instance, but once was enough. The big local chief struck his fist on the table as he told them "what was what," and the bidding was at an end. Do the voters sanction such methods?

These are a few matters of record to consider, and such is the material we propose to use during the campaign.

To the Voters of Bedford County

I want to call your attention to some of the facts of the Primary Election which was held on September 30th, 1911, which shows that I received the next highest vote for County Commissioner, which places my name on the Democratic ticket, therefore, being one of the candidates, I will try and be elected by all honest efforts in my canvass.

Now as to the Fusion movement, I signed up as the agreement designated twenty-one (21) days in advance of the primary and Mr. Blackburn, who would not sign before has since signed on the 9th of October, only when he saw an advantage by so doing. Had he signed at the proper time, showing his good faith, I would have resigned but he not doing so leaves me your candidate. I hope to merit your support at the coming election. I promise you if elected that instead of your taxes being raised as they have been in the past, to reduce them to a millage consistent to run the county's expenses with economy. I thank all who supported me so loyally at the primaries.

William F. Easter.

It was the first barn raising I was ever at that the hands commenced to put on the weatherboarding before the main frame was up. The barn was raised, rafters on and partly weatherboarded before dinner was over. There were 80 men and 27 women in attendance and all knew how to work.

WASHING THE DISHES.

Suggestions to His Brothers by the Club Woman's Husband.

Tonight I want to offer my brother husbandettes a valuable hint about dishwashing.

When you do the dishes don't set the dishpan in the bottom of the sink, as most men do. Sinks may be the right height for women, but they are too low for men.

For months I suffered from crick in the back, aching shoulders, stiff neck and abdominal cramps. I consulted our family physician without obtaining relief.

At last, quite by accident, I lit on the cause of my trouble. A pile of skillets and saucepans had been left in the sink, and I put the dishpan on them. Then I was not obliged to bend over so far as usual, and that day I had hardly any lumbago pains at all.

Since then I have rested the dishpan on a couple of bricks placed in the bottom of the sink, and I wash the dishes standing almost erect. The roses are coming back into my cheeks, and our whole home is brighter as a result of my lucky discovery.

I am sure that my men readers will be saved many miserable hours if they will follow my suggestion. The bricks may be used between times as door stoppers, foot warmers or nutcrackers. Tomorrow evening I will tell you what I know about washing granite ware.—Newark News.

DEEPEST SLEEP.

It Always Occurs During the First Hour of Slumber.

"Yes," said the doctor, "sleep is a very puzzling mystery. Nobody knows what the cause of it is, but we do know that it is always accompanied by anemia of the brain. In other words, when you sleep the blood drains away from the head to the limbs. If you fell asleep on a balanced bed, the moment you dropped off the foot of the bed would begin to sink, and the deeper the sleep the greater the slant."

"That is why a hot bath tends to sleepiness. It brings the blood to the skin and so lessens the supply in the brain." "Curiously enough," great cold has the same effect and for the same reason. "You know how cold awells and reddens the hands."

"Recent experiments have shown conclusively how pale and bloodless the brain grows in sleep. How? Well, a piece of bone has been removed from the skull of a puppy and a watchglass inserted instead. The moment the puppy under observation wakes its brain at once grows pink again. No; the puppy doesn't seem to mind it."

"Experiments made by dropping heavy balls have shown that sleep is always at its deepest in the first hour. After that unconsciousness gets shallower and shallower."—London Answers.

Maul Rock.

Among the numerous natural curiosities of West Virginia is one in Lincoln county called the "Maul rock" because of its similarity to a maul. The base of the rock is about a thousand feet above sea level and is made up of large boulders, says an exchange. The stem of the rock is twenty feet high and will average about seven feet in diameter. The cap, or maul part, is about six feet thick and is thirty-eight feet in circumference. The stem is of a soft formation and is fast crumbling away, since the timber has died that was a great protection from the force of strong winds. By mounting the rock by means of a ladder that is kept there a magnificent view of the West Virginia hills can be obtained.—Christian Science Monitor.

"Dear Jane—Sorry to hear you weren't feeling well. Hope you are better by now. Getting a good many orders here. No news, but more next time.—Lovingly, John."

"Dear Jane—Just to let you know I'm all right, though the rheumatism has been bothering me again. Got here this morning and have done a lot of business already. Nothing to write, but I'll do better next time.—With love John."—London Mail.

A Crop of Lions

I had hardly time to reload before the lions were popping in and out everywhere. They came out and ran by us along the edge of the brush, and I was sure I had wounded all of them. The grass was very high so we could not tell after hitting one whether he was dead or not. After the shooting was all over we went up very carefully to see the results; I found a large lioness stone dead not more than a yard inside the brush; that was the first one I had shot at. On examination of the place where I

We found another dead lion down in the bottom of the donga, but whether it was one of those I had been shooting at or one the doctor thought he had hit it was impossible to say. ## SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson IV.—Fourth Quarter, For Oct. 22, 1911.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Ex. iii, 8 to iv, 5. Memory Verses, iii, 11—Golden Text, Ps. c. 4—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

The topic of the lesson today is the rebuilding of the temple, which was begun in the second year of their return (iii, 8), but in the seventh month of the first year they repaired the altar and offered sacrifices.

According to Lev. xxiii, 23-36, the program for the seventh month was, for the first day blowing of trumpets, on the tenth day the atonement, on the fifteenth day the feast of tabernacles, and these they seem to have carefully observed. Note the one accord, for they gathered together as one man to Jerusalem (iii, 1). This unity of heart must be very pleasing to the Lord. Compare the seven "one accords" of Acts 1, 14; ii, 1, 40; iv, 24; v, 5, 12; viii, 6; xv, 25, all for God, and the four "one accords" of the Devil, Acts vii, 57; xii, 20; xviii, 12; xix, 43.

Their first essential to the worship of the Lord was an altar for sacrifice (iii, 2). See the altars of Noah and Abram (Gen. viii, 20; xii, 7, 8; xiii, 4), but observe that he had no altar in Egypt. Mark the threefold phrase "Unto the Lord" (iii, 3, 5, 6), and if you can find time to mark this, and "Before the Lord" in the book of Leviticus, where they are found many times, you will be greatly profited, as these two sayings cover all real Christian life. There is a saying in iii, 4, worthy of close attention, "As the duty of every day required," or as in the margin, "The matter of the day in his day." It is found just seven times pertaining to the things of God, the other six being in Ex. xvi, 4; I Kings viii, 59; xxi, 30; II Chron. viii, 13, 14; Lev. iii, 24. It is used once of the devil's tyranny in Ex. v, 13. We are reminded of "As thy days so shall thy strength be," and "Give us this day our daily bread."

The expression "the house or temple of the Lord" (iii, 3, 9, 10, 11, 12) reminds us of the great business in which we now are or should be engaged, the building of the church, which is His body (Eph. 4, 22, 23; ii, 19-22), "His own house, whose house are we" (Hab. iii, 6).

The house of our lesson was a literal building of wood and stone at Jerusalem. The building on which we are engaged is one of which the living stones are men and women and boys and girls, according to I Pet. ii, 5, 6, and every soul saved in any part of the world is another stone for the building. There were much praise and thanksgiving at the laying of the foundation of this temple (iii, 10, 11). We should be always full of praise because of our foundation, which has been laid strong and sure forever (Isa. xxviii, 16; I Cor. iii, 11), provided we are on that foundation by faith in Christ Jesus. All else will be swept away. As we go on with the building day by day some are weeping because of many discouragements, while some shout for joy (iii, 12, 13).

Some look backward and tell us of better things in the past. Some look around and are discouraged because of the worldliness and unbelief which prevail. The only way to look is upward to Him of whom it is written, "He shall not fail nor be discouraged (Isa. xlii, 4). Certain people who were adversaries of Judah and Benjamin wanted to help with this building, but the governor and the high priest said to them, "Ye have nothing to do with us to build an house unto our God." So their assistance was refused, and rightly too. Then they did all they could to hinder the work, and used force and power to cause it to cease, and succeeded, so that for many years there was no progress made with the building (iv, 1-5, 23, 24).

In the building of the church, the body of Christ, those who profess to be interested act so differently from Zerubbabel and Joshua, inasmuch as they seek help of every kind from all sorts of people, never considering whether they are the Lord's or not. As a rule, no questions are asked as to whether saved or unsaved if only money can be obtained or help in the choir, or whatever is needed. This is all wrong, and the way of our lesson is the only right way, for light cannot have fellowship with darkness nor believers with unbelievers, and they that are in the flesh (unsaved people) cannot please God (II Cor. vi, 14-18; Rom. viii, 7, 8). There is much that is called church work in which it is possible that the Lord has no part at all, as He never gave the pattern. The only real work of true believers is to manifest the life of Jesus and win others to Him. Building up one's own congregation or advancing the interests of a denomination may not be of the Lord at all, but may come under the heading of flag. i, 4, 9, "Mine house is waste, and ye run every man to his own house." I am sure that the Lord is calling to His people now, as He did by Haggai and Zechariah.

As the work on the temple was resumed and the building finished through the prophesying of Haggai and Zechariah (Ez. vi, 14, 15), so surely shall the church, the body of Christ, be completed and taken up to meet the Lord in the air before the end of this evil age, and then shall come an age of peace and righteousness with Israel as a center.

THE THRICE-A-WEEK WORLD

No Other Newspaper in the World

Gives so Much at so Low a Price.

The great political campaigns are now at hand, and you want the news accurately and promptly. The World long since established a record for impartiality, and anybody can afford its Thrice-a-Week edition, which comes every other day in the week, except Sunday. The Thrice-a-Week World also abounds in other strong features—serial stories, humor, markets, cartoons; in fact, everything that is to be found in a first-class daily.

THE THRICE-A-WEEK WORLD'S regular subscription price is only $1 per year, and this pays for 156 papers. We offer this unequalled newspaper and The Gazette, together for one year for $2.20. The regular price of the two papers is $2.50.

October 15—"London Tabernacle," Lancaster Gate, W., was crowded to-day to hear Pastor Russell. He spoke of mistaken notions regarding the end of the world. He assured his audience that "the earth abideth forever," and claimed errors were built upon misinterpretations of Scriptures.

We report him on Revelation x, 6, 7 as follows:

Our text, with other Scriptural statements respecting the end of the world (for instance, St. Peter's statement, "The heavens being on fire shall be dissolved"), have led Christians in general to accept the theory that God has decreed that shortly, or at some time, our earth is to be burned. The early Church expected and prayed for the second coming of Messiah, to establish the Kingdom of righteousness, to overthrow sin and to release mankind from its bondage and weakness and from the power of death, and thus to bless the whole earth, restoring all things to the glorious condition represented in miniature in Eden: man in perfection, with a Paradise home.—Acts III, 19-21.

But as centuries passed without the manifestation of Messiah's Kingdom, those expectations yielded to another suggestion, namely, that Jesus had not meant what had been understood, but meant that the Church should convert the world, under His supervision, during a period of a thousand years, and that then He would come and give their work His stamp of approval and wind things up by taking all the saints to heaven, setting fire to the earth to entirely consume it.

Catholics and Protestants Much Confused

Both Catholics and Protestants have been operating in harmony with this erroneous thought. Catholics claim that the Kingdom of Messiah was set up long ago and that the popes and cardinals are representatives of Jesus and the Church. They claim that the Pope is Christ's Vice-gent—this is to say, He reigns instead of Christ, as His representative. They claim that "the thousand years" is already in the past, since 1799, and that we are now in the "little season" mentioned in Revelation xx, 3, in which Satan was to be loosed, at the close of the thousand years.

Many of them understand that Protestantism in general, and particularly, Socialism and Free Masonry, are organizations of Satan, which will soon be destroyed in the burning up of the world.

Protestants are also much confused on the subject. They claim that we are in the reign of Messiah, but they are not sure when it began or when it will end. Before Luther's day the Catholic view prevailed, but according to Luther's preaching the Papal claims were false, and later the Papal system was branded as Antichrist. Since then Protestants are in confusion. Some recognize the Church of England and its kingly head as God's Kingdom in the earth, but they admit that it has not yet conquered the earth, nor is God's will done as in heaven, even in the British Isles. The Church of Russia makes a similar claim to being the Kingdom of God, and honors the Pope as the reigning representative of Messiah. Emperor William of Germany also has on his coins the legend that he is reigning "by the grace of God"—that his kingdom is a part of Messiah's Kingdom.

But all these theories Catholics and Protestants are now ignoring. In the light of our day none dare preach such theories. With present-day enlightenment it seems foolish to declare that the various kingdoms of Europe are Messiah's Kingdom, and that they are establishing a reign of righteousness. The costly preparations for war made by these very nations discredit entirely the claim that they are parts of Messiah's great Kingdom of righteousness and peace.

All denominations engaged in missionary work are professing the thought that soon the world will be converted; that the second coming of Christ will then take place, and then will come the consummation, and the burning of the world. How strange, how illogical! The heathen, according to reliable government statistics, are twice as numerous today as they were a century ago. Six hundred millions there were then; there are twelve hundred millions now. How long would it require, at this rate, to convert the world? And if the heathen were converted to the same condition of civilization enjoyed in Europe and America, could we claim then that God's will was done on earth as it is done in heaven? Assuredly not.

Thank God, the second coming of Messiah will not delay until the world is converted and God's will fully done and the plan of salvation ended. Quite to the contrary. His coming is for the very purpose of bringing all things into subjection to the Father's will. He comes that He may reign as King of kings and Lord of lords, in association with His Church. He will not reign through a representative or vice-gent, but personally, and "unto Him every knee shall bow and every tongue confess" to the glory of God. In His day the righteous shall flourish, and the evil-doers shall be cut off. The faithful Church, sharing in her Lord's resurrection, the First Resurrection, to glory, honor and immortality, will be His associate kings and priests, to reign for a thousand years. (Revelation xx, 6.)

Fire Symbolical of Destruction

Let us examine some texts which seem to teach that our earth will be destroyed by fire, and note that they are symbolical. "Fire" is frequently used in the Scriptures as a symbol of destruction. Thus the Church is exhorted to mortify or kill the fleshly nature, and is told that the fiery trials of life will assist them in this work. The opposition of enemies is to be destroyed by works of mercy and kindness, which figuratively, will be "coals of fire upon their heads." St. Peter mentions special trials and tribulations coming upon the Church, designed to purify her—purge out and destroy the dross. He says: "Think it not strange concerning the fiery trial which is to try you, as though some strange thing happened unto you."—1 Peter iv, 12.

St. Paul refers to special trials upon the Church in the end of the Gospel Age, which will consume false doctrines, human traditions, etc., and all false faith, but which will leave unscathed the true Faith and true characters. He says: "If any man build upon this foundation gold, silver, precious stones, wood, hay, stubble, every man's work shall be made manifest, for the day shall declare it, because it shall be revealed by fire; and the fire shall try every man's work of what sort it is. If any man's work abide which he hath built thereupon, he shall receive a reward. If any man's work shall be burned, he shall suffer loss, but he himself shall be saved, yet so as by fire."—1 Corinthians iii, 12-15.

These various Scriptures do not prove that the world could not be destroyed by fire in a literal way, but they do prove that "fire" is very frequently mentioned in the Bible in a figurative or symbolical manner. We might multiply the instances. "Our God is a consuming fire"—as regards everything contrary to righteousness; the symbolical "lake of fire," in the book of Revelation, is explained, to signify the Second Death, utter destruction, without hope of recovery.

World Burning Unscriptural

The supposition that the earth will be destroyed by fire, either soon or ever, would be contrary to the statement that "the earth abideth forever," and the declaration that God formed it not in vain, but formed it to be inhabited. (Isaiah xiv, 18.)

$3.50 RECIPE FREE, FOR WEAK MEN

Send Name and Address Today—You Can Have it Free and Be Strong and Vigorous.

I have in my possession a prescription for nervous debility, lack of vigor, weakened manhood, failing memory and lame back, brought on by excesses, unnatural drains, or the follies of youth, that has cured so many worn and nervous men right in their own homes—without any additional help or medicine—that I think every man who wishes to regain his manly power and virility, quickly and quietly, should have a copy. So I have determined to send a copy of the prescription free of charge, in a plain, ordinary sealed envelope to any man who will write me for it.

This prescription comes from a physician who has made a special study of men and I am convinced it is the surest-acting combination for the cure of deficient manhood and vigor failure ever put together.

I think I owe it to my fellow man to send them a copy in confidence so that any man anywhere who is weak and discouraged with repeated failures may stop drugging himself with harmful patent medicines, secure what I believe is the quickest-acting restorative, upbuilding, SPOT-TOUCHING remedy ever devised, and so cure himself at home quietly and quickly. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, 3534 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich. and I will send you a copy of this splendid recipe in a plain, ordinary envelope free of charge. A great many doctors would charge $3.00 to $5.00 for merely writing out a prescription like this—but I send it entirely free.

One of the very strong passages which seems to teach that the earth will be devoured by fire is found in Zephaniah iii, 8: "Wait ye upon Me, saith the Lord, until that day that I rise up to the prey, for My determination is to gather the nations, that I may assemble the kingdoms; to pour upon them all Mine indignation, even all My fierce anger; for the whole earth shall be devoured with the fire of My jealousy"—anger.

That the fire of God's anger which will come upon the world will not destroy the physical earth, with all its inhabitants, but will destroy the evil of present institutions, is shown by the succeeding sentence, which declares: "Then will I turn to the people a pure Message, that they may all call upon the name of the Lord to serve Him with one consent." If the fire of this text were literal, the earth and its people would be no more, but as symbolical fire it is perceived that it is a burning against unrighteousness, iniquity, sin, the overthrow of all institutions of evil, and the awakening of mankind and preparing them to hear the Voice of God, the language of the Truth, the Divine Message.

What we have seen prepares us for the somewhat more difficult statement of St. Peter: "The Day of the Lord will come as a thief in the night, in the which the heavens shall pass away with a great noise, and the elements shall melt with fervent heat; the earth also, and the works that are therein, shall be burned up." * * * The heavens, being on fire, shall be dissolved, and the elements shall melt with fervent heat. Nevertheless we, according to His promise, look for a New Heavens and a New Earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness." (1 Peter iii, 10-13.) To harmonize these words of St. Peter with other Bible statements, we must consider the "fire" here mentioned to be symbolical. Not only the earth is to be consumed, but the heavens also. The "heavens" will take fire first and be dissolved.

What heavens shall we suppose are here referred to?—not the literal, starry heavens, nor even our atmospheric heavens, nor yet the heaven of Divine Presence and glory. The church systems, the ecclesiastical powers, are symbolically referred to as the "heavens," at the present time, supervising and over-ruling the temporal and social arrangements which are represented by the "earth." The "earth" represents organized society, as in contrast with the "sea," which symbolically represents disorganized society, the uncivilized and all who are rebellious against governments. When the "heavens" (ecclesiastical powers) of the present time shall be "dissolved," it will be with a great noise, with great confusion, commotion. Ecclesiastical institutions of the present time are in a very troubled condition, though they are in no danger of immediate collapse. The principal outcry is that few attend church services, and that the collections are small.

St. Peter's words indicate a crisis in ecclesiastical affairs still future. The Scriptures show us that a great Federation is seemingly bringing Ecclesiasticism into greater power than it has exercised in years. Other intimations of Scripture lead us to expect that that federative organization will attempt a rigid control of the world through affiliation with political and civil power, and that a considerable measure of success will lead to intoxication on the subject and an attempt to take away the liberties of the people entirely, the result of which will be a great explosion, or a great "earthquake," in the symbolical language of Scripture. It will be then that the heavens will take fire and be consumed with a great noise, commotion, disaster, etc. And the commotion will include the social order. The elements will melt with the intensity of the heat, the strife, which will then be engendered. The elements of society are those mutual advantages and assistances of good people, upon which the stability of government rests.

The Bible clearly intimates that the condition of affairs symbolized by the melting of society and the disintegrating of its elements in the great heat of strife at that time will be the result of superstition and fear. The end will be anarchy, or as the Bible declares, "Every man's hand will be against his neighbor." Selfishness will be the predominating, ruling principle.

The Symbolic Fire Useful

The question arises, Why should God permit the fall of our Christian systems, which certainly have done much that is morally assistful to the world? And why should He permit the overthrow of the present order of things, which certainly is much more advantageous than anarchy and disorder? The Bible answer is that God is not forcing this issue, but is merely allowing mankind to work out these results. The trouble and disaster will come as the natural result of ignoring the principles of Divine Law. Ecclesiasticism is unauthorized to claim that it is God's Kingdom, invested with Divine power and authority to rule the world. This fallacious claim and the attempt to enforce it will bring upon it the "fire" which will consume.

The world, neglectful of the Golden Rule, and obeying the false standard that "might makes right," will overthrow society by precipitating a conflict between the two great parties—the capitalists, trusts, kings and princes on the one hand, and labor unions and the masses on the other hand. Each will feel that a death struggle has arrived and that the battle must be fought. Each will feel unwarrantably self-confident of victory. According to the Bible, the result will be the complete wreck of our present society, symbolically pictured as "fire."

But the Lord through the Prophet Zephaniah points out that, following this time of "fire" and trouble, will come a blessing to the earth. So also He declares through St. Peter, that following the symbolic fire, will come "a New Heaven" and a new earthly condition, the basic principle of which will be righteousness; and the Prophet Zephaniah says that then God's Message, in its purity, shall reach the people. Both statements are true. On the ruins of our present civilization, when mankind will be sick at heart with the failure of what they had considered to be the Brain Age, they will look to the Lord, to whom they should have looked sooner. They will perceive the coming reign of righteousness and will say, "Lo this is our God, we have waited for Him and He will deliver us." (Isaiah xxv, 9.) Then the Prophet declares, "The desire of all nations shall come." (Haggai ii, 7.)

All nations are desiring blessing, prosperity, and God desires that all shall have these very favors, and they will be obtainable through Messiah's Kingdom. Then the blessing of mankind will begin. The Messianic Kingdom, invisibly but allpowerful will be thoroughly manifest in its dealings and its righteous judgments will have control. The blessing will come through Israel, extending to and including "all the families of the earth." How grand the thought that the New Heavens will be the new ecclesiastical powers—the glorified Church—Christ and His Bride in glory and power. The New Earth mentioned by the Apostle will be the new organization of human society, along the lines of righteousness—the Golden Rule.

We have not forgotten our text. What we have said is in line with it. It requires the addition of one word to make its meaning clear. The Mystery of God, which has been kept secret from the foundation of the world, shall be finished, completed, no longer a mystery. "And the angel saith * * * that the time should be no longer [delayed]." (Revelation x, 6, 7.) This has no reference to the end of time. Time can never end. Other Scriptures show that we are living very near the finish, the completion of the Church, which is the "Mystery." (Ephesians iii, 3-6; v, 32.) With the completion of the Church (the "Mystery") will begin the fulfillment of all the glorious promises of the Bible respecting the lifting of the curse from the earth, and the Divine blessing upon all earthly things.

A Peacemaker

By EDNA JENKINS

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

"How long are you going to hang around Laura Troop, Charlie, before you get her?"

"I fear I'll never get her."

"It would serve you right if you didn't."

"Why do you say that?"

"You're no adept at the game of love."

"What do you mean by the game of love?"

"There is a game of love the same as a game of war or politics. There is a game in everything."

"Teach me the game of love."

"I'd rather play one for you, putting my hand on yours and moving the pieces for you, only you would have to promise to make no move independently."

Charlie Warren thought deeply on what had been said to him by his friend Hereford. He sometimes suspected that Miss Troop was amusing herself with him, but what the result would be he had not even an opinion.

Hereford, on the contrary, had observed the girl in Warren's company and knew by instinct that she wouldn't lose her lover for the world. Very fond of Warren and knowing that he was made really miserable by Miss Troop, he had a desire to revenge his friend and bring him in a winner at the same time.

"Very well," said Warren. "Play the game for me with Laura."

"Not unless you promise to obey every instruction I give you."

"I consent," replied Warren haltingly. "Then I will make the first move. Remember, you are to do exactly what I say."

"What am I to do first?"

"The next time you meet Laura cut her dead."

"For heaven's sake, what's that for?"

"To break the present deadlock."

"Then what?"

"I don't know. I shall be guided by what our opponent does."

Notwithstanding Charlie's promise it was some time before he could make up his mind to obey. However, he consented at last, and the next morning he did the deed bravely. He was used to passing Miss Troop's house on his way to business, and she often contrived to be where her lover could see her. One day she would smile at him, the next scowl at him. When he passed without looking up at her a scowl she had put on faded into a look of astonishment.

"Well, I declare!" she exclaimed, following him with her eyes till he had turned a corner. "What in the world does it mean? I wonder if any one has been saying anything mean about me. I can't remember having treated him any worse than usual. What has he got hold of, I wonder? How mean of him not to come up like a man and tell me to my face what's the matter. I suppose he thinks I'll knuckle down to him. Not I. I'll pay him in his own coin."

The next evening Charlie Warren rushed wildly into Hereford's room.

"It's all up with me!" he cried.

"What's up?"

"I cut Laura yesterday. By the mail today I received a note from her saying that, having been so unmanly and ungentlemanly as to pass her without speaking to her, she wished to inform me that she had no further desire for my acquaintance. Great Scott! What shall I do?"

"Cut her again. This time if you get an opportunity turn your back square upon her."

"I shall go at once and explain, begging her forgiveness."

"No you won't. You've promised to be guided by me."

Hereford found his friend unmanageable. The best he could do with him was to gain his consent that he (Hereford) should see Miss Troop and play the rest of the game directly.

Warren could not wait, so, leaving him, Hereford sallied off to beard the lioness in her den. Within half an hour the messenger returned.

"Well?" asked the lover anxiously.

"I found her in."

"What did you say?"

"I told her that you had sent me to tell her that you had lost all respect for her."

"Oh, my good gracious! You've done me up. What did she say?"

"She asked why you had not the manliness to come with the message yourself. I replied that you wished never to see her again."

"Don't tell me any more or I shall kill you."

"All right; I think I'll have a smoke."

He filled his pipe and lit it.

"I mean I'll kill you if you don't tell me the rest at once."

"Oh, I can't remember it all."

"Tell me what you remember."

"I told her that I had found you the other day disgruntled with her treatment of you; that I had endeavored to persuade you to be patient with her, but had failed; you had become thoroughly imbibed against her. She believed the yarn and admitted that she had teased you a little bit. If I could secure your forgiveness she would never do so any more."

Warren gave a jump for his friend and threw his arms about his neck.

Married women do not usually favor their husbands' intimate men friends. Mrs. Troop is an exception. She dotes on Hereford, thinking that he brought about a peace between her and the man she loves. Troop has had the good sense to keep the secret.
